Question 4: Any other comments?

Other comments raised:

- I would never let my dog in a cemetery. I worm my dog every 3 months and clean up after him so hopefully he isn't a health hazard.
- OK having these rules and regulations there's never going to be anyone to enforce them. I could name and shame at least 4 people who don't think this applies to them
- We normally take our two dogs to other areas in the village for their walk but take them in on their leads occasionally to visit my father's grave at the cemetery.
- I think dogs should be excluded from these areas. There are plenty of other places to exercise a dog in the area.

- Happy for dogs to be excluded entirely. Dogs can be tied at the gate if need be.
- This is a place to rest in peace, and visit loved one's departed, last thing I want to do is step or kneel in dog poo!
- Although there are notices on the playing field (no dogs apart from guide) This is so often ignored
- It would be very much appreciated if Arnside Knott could be similarly protected. At the very least notices on gates to advise that dogs should be on leads etc
- This should be a dog exclusion zone also
- I very strongly support any measures which ensure dog owners behave responsibly with regard to the exercise of dogs
